DELABIE, the European leader in water controls and sanitary ware for public places, expands its BINOPTIC range with a new 252mm wall-mounted spout. This innovation offers even greater flexibility for the design of public washrooms.

An extended range for a perfect fit

With three available lengths – 135mm, 200mm, and now 252mm – the BINOPTIC wall-mounted tap adapts to all configurations. No more installation dilemmas: whether for inset, semi-recessed, or countertop basins, it ensures the perfect balance between aesthetics and functionality.

A smart tap that thinks of everything... Especially water!

Equipped with a sensor at the tip of the spout, the BINOPTIC enables touch-free activation, optimising hygiene, while reducing water consumption to just 3 litres per minute – three times less than standard domestic taps.

A solution designed for public places

Tested for over 500,000 operations, and backed by spare parts availability for 50 years, the BINOPTIC is built to meet the demands of high-traffic environments. Its independent IP65-rated electronic unit and LED diagnostic system ensure easy installation and maintenance.

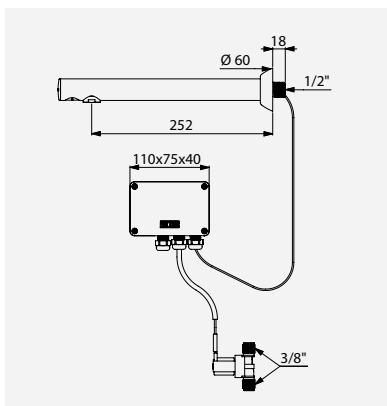

Refined and responsible design

Available in various lengths and finishes, the BINOPTIC combines elegance with durability. Its minimalist design blends seamlessly into any public or commercial setting, while offering an environmentally friendly solution.
